OF REMEMBRANCE.

I do remember every note
And each sweet letter that she wrote
From where, afar the palm blest isles
Are lovelier for her splendid smiles.
I do remember even the flower
She sent me in a lonely hour.

And sometimes, when my lonely soul
Heareth in dark God's thunders roll,
I wonder—her sweet worshiper—
If God's dark storms break over her.
And if they do I know my breast
Would bear them all to give her rest.

But, no; the fragrant orange blossoms
Waft through her life their sweet perfumes;
And the tall ships, with wind blown sails,
Bring to her songs of nightingales.
Yet, do they still, where'er they be,
Sing to her one last song of me!

THE WHITE HORSE.

"This canyon ought to have a history, Pablo," I said to the guide as, supper finished, I leaned back on my blankets and dreamily gazed at the scene before us.

It was a summer night—a night in the southwest, where nights are perfect. The moon was at the full, and not a cloud was in the sky to obscure her radiance or the light of the myriad stars which bore her company. The air was cool and bracing, yet balmy, and there was just enough breeze to lull one's spirits and cause him to forget the world and indulge in fanciful reveries such as only southern breezes inspire.

We had pitched our camp on one of the sloping hills on the south side of the canyon, where a little stream of clear, sweet water rippled from a spring in a ravine down into the canyon below. Above us was the sighing, odorous forest of juniper and pinon. Below was a little stretch of velvety grass extending clear to the floor of the canyon on both sides of the little stream. Right and left stretched the canyon itself, its walls, precipitous for the most part, rising grandly hundreds of feet high on each side.

"It is beautiful, Pablo," I continued. "It must have a history of some kind or a story—no?"

"Si, senor, that it has—aye, that it has," answered the Mexican, lighting a fresh cigarette and puffing at it reflectively a moment. "Would the senor hear it?"

"By all means, Pablo. Go ahead."

And here is Pablo's story as nearly as I can translate it, for he spoke in Spanish:

"Does the senor see the cliff on the other side, how high it is? That is the cliff of the White Horse. It is many hundred feet high and straight up and down. And at the top when the moon is a little higher the senor will see the white horse. It is a great white rock on the edge of the cliff, and by clear moonlight it looks like a white horse. It has not alway been there, and now, they say, on the anniversaries of a certain day the ghost of old Don Fernando comes and rides it along the edge of the canyon.

"Don Fernando? Oh, aye. May the blessed saints have mercy upon him!" ejaculated Pablo, crossing himself.

"Many years ago Don Fernando Cortez—he was a grandson or something of the great Cortez—lived over above beyond the canyon several miles. Don Fernando was rich and lived in a grand house and had many servants and slaves. He was a great entertainer, was Don Fernando, and people used to come many miles—hundreds, thousands, yes,—to his grand dinners and balls.

"He was not a good man. No. He was a cruel master and hard with all his people and made them all hate him. He was kind to only two living creatures. One of these was his beautiful daughter, the Lady Ysabel; the other was his great white stallion, the largest and fleetest horse in all the country. These two the old don loved as his two eyes, and well he might. Yes. The Lady Ysabel was not only beautiful, but she was kind and good, and all the people loved her as much as they hated the don, which was a great deal. She had golden hair and eyes like the sky, and it is said the birds listened when she sang. And the horse—aye, he was wonderful. He was as big as three ordinary horses, and his tread shook the ground. He had a long, white mane and eyes that flashed fire and was almost as much feared as the old don, who alone dared go near him.

"The Lady Ysabel had many suitors. The wealthiest and most aristocratic men in all the country came to sue for her hand, many of them from faroff California, and some, it is said, came even from Spain. But the Lady Ysabel would have none of them. She loved her pony and her dogs and birds and her people, but a man, no. One after another came, but she turned them all away. So after a few years the old don became tired of what he called her foolishness and swore she should marry, and at once, a man whom he had selected for her.

"This grieved the Lady Ysabel very much, for not only did she not love any of those who had offered themselves to her, but her heart was already given—given to one of her father's peons, a young man named Jose, whom she had helped to nurse through a terrible illness. Him she used to meet by stealth nearly every night unknown to any but themselves. But one night when the Lady Ysabel's wedding day was near at hand she and her lover were seen together, and the story came to the ears of the old don.

"He started to find them, swearing to kill them both, but they had been warned and had taken two of the fleetest horses in the stables and fled. With mad haste the don saddled his white stallion and pursued them. They had taken their way over the hills blindly, but some instinct led the don to follow the direction they had taken, and in a short time he had them in sight riding over the plateau beyond the canyon there.

"When the lovers saw they were pursued, they put their jaded horses to their highest speed, hoping to escape, but soon they found it was too late, and as the old don, with terrible curses, pressed them closely they leaped to the ground, ran to the edge of the cliff, and clasped in each other's arms sprang into eternity together.

"And the don? For days he raved like a madman and seemed to know no one. Then he became quieter, and they thought he would be himself again. But one moonlight night they missed him, and several set out to seek him. He was riding up and down the edge of the cliff yonder, raving and blaspheming terribly, and none of those who had come to find him dared approach. For hours he raved. Then, just as the moon came from behind a cloud, they saw him ride back from the cliff a little distance. Then he wheeled sharply and shouting, 'Now, my friend, both together!' he rode full speed at the precipice. But at the edge the white stallion halted suddenly, and the don went over alone. In midair he shook his fist and hurled a curse at the friend who had deserted him at the last minute, and then and there the great white stallion turned to stone. There he stands, senor—you can see him plainly now—still looking over the precipice. It is from him that the cliff and the canyon get their name.

"And it is said by the superstitious, senor," continued Pablo, drawing closer to the fire and shuddering slightly "that on the anniversary of old Don Fernando's death and on Lady Ysabel's saint's day the ghosts of Lady Ysabel and Jose ride forth on the plateau, and that of the old don pursues them riding the white stallion, which leaves its station at such times. And—oh, senor, for the love of God, look!"

Startled, I looked quickly across the canyon. The rock which appeared so very little like a white horse seemed to vanish as though in mist. Then there was a series of blood curdling shrieks and curses, and flying along the edge of the cliff rode three persons on horseback, and one, behind the others, rode a great white horse.

It was only a moment, and then the drunken cowboys passed out of sight, and the tiny fleck of vapor which had for those few seconds kept the moonlight from the white horse rock moved on, leaving the rock standing out in the clear light, just as before. Still shivering with the sudden fright I had had, I turned to Pablo. He had fallen in a fit and was lying rigid, with flecks of foam on his lips. I brought him round soon, and he sat up, his eyes staring wildly.

"Well, Pablo," I said in as steady a voice as I could command, "you must have had a dream. You've been plunging around and yelling for a full five minutes."

"What, senor, I? A dream? Then it was not"—

"I think it was the bread, Pablo. You ate a big supper, and that hot sour bread would kill an Indian."

Pablo concluded not to run away, as he might have done if I hadn't been able to convince him it was only a dream.—R. L. Ketchum in Romance.

Possibilities of the Indian.

The Indian has within him the capabilities upon which to base a better manhood and citizenship despite the barbarous instincts attributed to him. With no incentive to work and with encouragement to vice and idleness on every hand there are today upon the reservations many excellent and worthy Indian men and women. Though stolid and sphinxlike in demeanor, the Indian has the feelings and affections common to human beings.

With no educational advantages they are men of remarkable sense, often approaching a high order of ability. The old chief of the Sioux nation, Spotted Tail, was a striking figure, whether taken physically or intellectually. The late Mrs. Elizabeth Winans, a Sioux woman, during a life of Christian service for her people was actuated by a purpose as pure and noble as that shown by any philanthropist of the country.

Among the Indians are fine natural orators and statesmen equaled by few educated white men. Under education they have shown themselves quick and ready learners, competing easily with white pupils of the same age. I have observed them at thier studies and am convinced that they are as capable as white children of grasping the ordinary branches taught in the common schools. It has been my pleasure to hear addresses from full blooded Indian college students which would do credit to undergraduates of Yale or Harvard.—Senator Kyle in North American Review.

He Worked the Boss.

A little man with a bald head and an inoffensive blue eye drifted into a Main street saloon and threw a half dollar on the bar.

"Gimme a schooner of beer," he said.

The schooner was given him Just as he was about to drink it a big man came in and said: "Hello, Shorty. Who's buying?"

"I am," replied Shorty, with dignity.

"You," scoffed the big man. "Why, you never had a cent in your life. Your wife gets your wages."

"That's all right," said Shorty. "Mebbe she does, but I've got money today."

"How'd you get it?"

"Well," replied Shorty, "I don't know as I mind tellin. I had a couple of bad teeth, an she gimme enough to get 'em pulled."

"Didn't you get 'em pulled?"

"Sure, but I worked her for 50 cents for gas, an this is the 50. See?"—Buffalo Express.

A Large Bakery.

Brooklyn can boast of having the largest bread bakery in the world. Seventy thousand loaves are daily turned out, requiring 300 barrels of flour. Three hundred and fifty persons are employed in the bakery, and for delivering the bread in New York and adjacent places over 100 wagons, constructed for the purpose, are in constant use.—New York News.

RAT CATCHER BILL.

AN ODD NEW YORK CHARACTER TALKS OF HIS PROFESSION.

The Business Has Gone to the Dogs, Metaphorically Speaking—In the Good Old Days Before the S. P. C. A.—The Professor Tells Something of His Methods.

There are but six professional rat catchers in New York city, and only two of these have regular places of business. The profession has gone to the dogs. This statement, while used as a metaphor, is also a paradox. As a matter of fact, the business has not gone to the dogs, but simply declined because the state laws against rat baiting are very severe and are rigidly enforced by the officers of the S. P. C. A.

In the "good old days" there was money in rat catching. The "professor," armed with his lantern and tongs and accompanied by a humble apprentice to "hold the bag," would sally forth and make an arrangement with some restaurant or stable proprietor to relieve the premises of a portion of its population of rodents at so much per rat, generally "10 cents per." An hour later these same rats would figure in some Center street or Bowery pit as objects of the prowess of some fancy black and tan or rough haired terrier, the admiring owner of it cheerfully paying 25 cents each, or five for $1, for them.

William A. Heitler, who claims to be "the original Bill the Rat Catcher," a title gained in 18 years' service with Harry Jennings, whose memory is kept green among "the fancy," said, in discussing the decadence of his profession:

"The business isn't what it used to be. Then we made our own terms and made money at both ends. Then we dealt with the people direct. Now we have got to deal with the agents. If a flat is overrun with rats, the tenant threatens to move. Then the agent writes on a postal card, 'Bill, rid this flat of rats.' That is mostly daylight work. I go up to the flat and set my traps and keep a-setting them until there isn't anything to catch."

"Don't you use ferrets?"

"Yes, I use ferrets in my business, but not in flat houses. Don't you know that a rat killed by a ferret is just the same as a poisoned rat under the floor or in the wall? I sell ferrets, but what good are they? Now, when we clean out a flat, why, then, we sell the lady some stuff to keep them out. It does the work all right, only it drives them into some other flat.

"The real art in this here profession is night work. It ain't really what you would call artistic, but it is more like sleight of hand. In the daytime you go to the place and go all over the halls and nail pieces of tin over most of the holes. A house is to the rats just like a town is to people. There are avenues and alleys.

"Now, just imagine that some night a lot of policemen would start from the North river and the East river, simultaneouslike, and chase everybody into Broadway, and then set 'em all going to the Battery. Well, that's the way we do with rats. We plug up all the ends of the side streets, you might say, and get them on to a Broadway.

"We do this by turning several ferrets loose to stir them up. The cellar is where I want them. There I am with my little bullseye lantern and my long tongs. The rat starts across the floor. I hear him and flash the lanterns. The minute the round light spot strikes him he comes to a dead standstill. He seems paralyzed, and he won't move under five seconds. Then is my chance.

"If I want to save him to try a dog with, I reach forward, and with my tongs grab him by the tail. If I don't want a live rat—and there ain't much call for them now—I break his back with the tongs.

"The biggest night's work I ever done was killing 960 rats at Willard's hotel in Washington. When I got through that job, I felt like proposing to the government to rid the wharves and docks of the country of rats. Now, that is all there is to rat catching. The work isn't dangerous, except when you tackle the rats on a ship. When the Spanish training ship was here, I took 156 rats off her. They were not like the house rats we have here. They were slim and gray, with tails twice as long as their bodies. They were as active as monkeys.

"To give you an idea. I have a little dog that has killed 50 rats in 18 minutes. I put 20 of these ship rats into a pit with him, and at the end of 50 minutes he had only killed seven. They did not fight him, but they simply kept out of his way, jumping over him when he would rush.

"But, as I was a-saying, the time was when a rat catcher had money to burn. It was a dull night that he didn't clear his $25 or $35. Now he can't make that in a week in the busy season, including what he gets for trimming dogs' ears, selling ferrets and things like that. When you have to deal with real estate agents, you ain't going to get none the best of it."

"Did you ever try the scheme of belling a rat? They say that will scare all the other rats away?"

"I only know this: If you put a bell on a rat, he will be found dead in the walls inside of two days. It is my belief that the other rats kill him; but, say, if you ever want to stir up a rat colony, catch one old fellow, smear him with phosphorous paste and send him on his travels.

"In the winter I sell a great many live rats to the medical colleges. They use them in experiments. There is a big tannery over in Newark that gives 8 cents apiece for rat hides. The skin must be perfect, however.

"The least tear makes it no good, and it is hardly worth while skinning them, so many are rejected. They tan the skin soft, like kid, and tan it with the hair on. The skins are not used to make kid gloves. They told me the last time I took 12 dozen over there that they were used for lining gloves."—New York World.

HOW IS IT?

If Candidates Spend More Than $100 They are Disqualified From Holding Office.

The Purity of Election Law that was passed at the last session of the Legislature is most wonderfully constructed. It may be made to fit almost any case that can be imagined. A well-known attorney of this city says, that according to his interpretion of the Act, any candidate who expended more than $100 during the late canvass is disqualified from holding office. He says that Jim Budd exceeded his limit by several hundred dollars and can not take his seat as Governor, Four-fifths of the candidates elected at the last election are dis qualified.

He pointed out a portion of Section 5, which reads: "No sum of money shall be paid and no expense shall be incurred * * * which shall exceed $100 for the candidate or $1000 for the Committee," Other lawyers claim that while the law is ambiguous this construction can not be placed up on it, and point on the clause where it says that the candidate can spend 10 per cent of one year's salary.

The law will likely be tested and referred to the Supreme Court and if the Court holds that $100 is the limit there will be many a fat office without an incumbent.—Sacramento Bee.

West Point Cadetship.

Hon. Thomas J. Geary has appointed the first Tuesday in February for an examination for appointment of a cadet at West Point, says the Santa Rosa Democrat. The examination will be held in Santa Rosa. Prof. Bull of Healdsburg and Superintendent of Schools-elect E. W. Davis will be two of the Examining Board. The third has not yet been selected. Qualifications—The age for the admission of cadets to the academy is between 17 and 22 years. Candidates must be unmarried, at least five feet in height, free from any infectious or immoral order, and generally from any deformity, disease or infirmity which may render them unfit for military service. They must be well versed in reading, in writing, including orthography, in arithmetic and have a knowledge of the elements of English grammar, of descriptive geography, (particularly of our own country) and of the history of the United States. The appointee of Mr. Geary at Annapolis, Mr. Standley, stands at the head of his class. It is to be hoped that the appointment for West Point will do as well.

The Populists say it is both.

The Prohibitionist say it is whisky.

The preachers say it is the devil.

Now, what is your idea?—Mida's Criterion.

The cost of wars in the United States has been as follows: Revolutionary, $135,193,703; war of 1812-15, $107,159,003; Mexican war, $100,000,000; rebellion, $6,189,925,908. The estimated cost of Indian wars from 1776 to 1886 has been $696,339,277.

A witty and attractive young lady asked the following question: "What is the difference between myself and a clock?" "Mademoiselle, the clock tells the hours and you make us forget them" was the very natural reply.

Always in demand—"Tell us," cried the group of maidens, "how to always remain young and attractive." "That is just dead easy," replied the sage, without raising his eyes from his book, "Get a fortune and stay single."

The Union Hotel bar, under the supervision of A. A. Enke, will be supplied with the very best of wines, whiskeys and cigars to be found in the market. *

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that State during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by all dealers. *

Read Prof. Webb's Advice.

Prof. A. A. Webb, Fort Madison, Iowa, High School says: "The cyclopedia is a factor in educating children, since it is generally found in the teachers' library and is often his staunchest friend and most reliable advisor. But the schoolroom is the cyclopedia's proper and most useful sphere, and the skillful educator can readily make it a powerful assistant and the friend and companion of his pupils. Independence being an inherited characteristic of mankind, children will speedily learn to help themselves if the means of self-help are easily accessible, rather than to rely solely upon the teacher; and what of surer means of self-help can we offer them than a first-class cyclopedia of useful information?

It is 'the best' and the only original, American cyclopedia. Illustrated with maps, plans and engravings which are critically correct. More condensed than Brittannica and more accurate than Appleton's. Contains more subjects, is later than either and costs less than half as much. It is truly the busy man's cyclopedia, the articles being divided and subdivided so that any point may be turned to without being compelled to read the whole article, as in Appleton's. Thousands of distinguished scholars have declared it to be "the best." It is not only the best cyclopedia, but it is a whole library of "universal knowledge" from the pen of the greatest scholars the world has produced. Two thousand of the most eminent scholars living have become responsible for the accuracy and thoroughness of the work by signing their names to their contributions. It has what no other work claims, viz: Forty of America's greatest scholars as editors, who are responsible for the whole work. Its thoroughness and accuracy are unquestionable. For particulars how to obtain or sell it, address C. H. LIBBY, East Oakland, California." *

Fluttering, No Appetite, Could not Sleep, Wind on Stomach.

"For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I could not sweep a room without resting. My husband induced me to try

M. F. Mullen of El Verano was in town last Thursday evening. Mr. Mullen enjoys the distinction of being the Postmaster, Wells, Fargo & Co's Express Agent, telegraph operator and Freight and Passenger Agent of the Southern Pacific Company in that town. Like the "Arizona Kicker," he conducts his various business enterprises under one roof. From the above it is obvious that this genial gentleman manages the entire business of El Verano all by himself.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of Cornelius & Yager, proprietors of the Union Market. These gentlemen are experienced butchers and it is their intention to make their market one of the finest in Sonoma county. It will be their aim to keep the very best of fresh meats, hams, bacon and dairy products to be had. Their shop is next door to the Postoffice and the general public is invited to give them a call. Messrs. Cornelius & Yager believe in printers ink and by looking elsewhere in these columns you will find their display advertisement.

An inch-and-a-half of rain fell in this place and the near vicinity last Tuesday morning between the hours of midnight and 12 o'clock M., according to the rain guage belonging to U. S. Signal Observer Robt. Hall. On the Senator Jones ranch, five or six miles from town, the precipitation was only about half of what it was in other parts of the valley. It may not be generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact, that the rainfall in the reclaimed marsh lands south of town is seldom over one-half of what it is in other sections of Sonoma Valley, and as narrated above this last storm was no exception to the rule. Can any one explain the phenomena?

An exchange says: This is a peculiar world; one is struggling for justice and another is fleeing from it. One man is saving to build a house and another is trying to sell his for less than cost in order to get rid of it. One man is spending all the money he can make in taking a girl to a theater and sending her flowers, with the hope of making her his wife, while his neighbor is spending what gold he has in getting a divorce. One man escapes all the diseases that flesh is heir to and gets killed on the railroad. Another escapes with a scratch and dies with the whooping cough. One man stands off his creditors and goes a traveling while another pays his debts and stays at home.

WILL HAVE A RECOUNT.

Mrs. Martin Still Hankering After the School Superintendency.

Mrs. Fannie McG. Martin, who bolted the Republican convention and then ran as an independent candidate for School Superintendent, still has the third-term bee buzzing in her bonnet. She was defeated for the office by Mr. E. W. Davis, than whom no one is better qualified for the office, by a plurality of 279 votes, and now she is going to contest his election in the courts.

The madam, who is quite sore over her defeat, will demand a judicial recount of the votes cast for School Superintendent at the recent election.

She claims that she has been counted out and that Mr. Davis has been counted in and that she is entitled to the office.

The deluded candidate has secured the services of one of Sonoma county's brightest young lawyers, Mr. Gil P. Hall, who if he does not succeed in getting a decision in his client's favor will certainly earn a nice fat fee.

In so far as Mr. Davis and his friends are concerned they are not in the least perturbed as to the final result, as they know the madam is pursuing a will o' the wisp.

We will venture the prediction that a recount will give Mr. Davis a larger plurality than he is officially credited with.

DUCKS.

Flying in by the Thousands—Good Shooting Now Assured.

The rain storm of last Tuesday morning, which was accompanied by a strong southeast wind, drove thousands of ducks from the bay into the tules which line the shores of Sonoma and Petaluma creeks. Almost every day this week there has been an incessant banging of shotguns on both sides of the Donahue railway track from Schellville to Sears' Point, much to the dismay of mallard, teal, sprig and widgeon, which appear to be about the only species of ducks forced inland by the recent storm. Big bags have been made and the local hunter with his old-style shotgun and primitive ways has not been behind hand in getting his share of the ducks as against the high-toned, diamond-ringed city sportsman with his leased lands, baited ponds, floating club house, row boat, decoys, smokeless powder, hammerless shotgun and well-trained retriever.

THE RAIN.

It Came Just in the Nick of Time.

The rain which fell in this valley last Tuesday morning came just in the nick of time and when it would do the most good. Most of our farmers since the rain of last September have plowed and seeded their lands, most of which, owing to the genial weather of the past five or six weeks, is now covered with grain from one to two inches high. The rain which has fallen so opportunely will give the grain fields an additional start and insure good crops even though not another drop falls between now and the new year. Pasturage will also be greatly benefited. Grass which is now covering the valley and surrounding hills is in many instances several inches high and the recent rainfall will ensure feed in plenty for stock throughout the winter without the help of hay or grain. The outlook for stock and dairy products never looked brighter during the month of November in Sonoma Valley than it does this season.

Received His Election Certificate

A. J. Atchinson, County Auditor and Recorder-elect, has received his certificate of election and filed a $60,000 bond. Thus ends the threatened suit against him to prevent his taking the office on the ground that he had violated the Purity of Election Law by promising a deputyship to George Ross of Santa Rosa. Evidently Ross and his friends came to the conclusion that it would be hard to make a jury believe, in face of Mr. Atchinson's denial, that he had promised him the coveted deputyship, particularly when it is taken into consideration that Ross is a Democrat and Mr. Atchinson a Republican.

Election Expenses.

The election expenses of the Republican, Democratic, Populist and Prohibition parties in this county were filed with County Clerk Wines last Wednesday. The Republican County Committee spent $1,960; Democratic, $994; Populist, $75; Prohibitionist, $65. For the most part the money was spent for brass bands, hall rent and printing.

Shooting Scrape.

A dispatch from Santa Rosa says that a shooting scrape took place last Wednesday between S. H. Sheplar and J. H. Ballard. Both men were slightly wounded. The combat took place on Mr. Sheplar's farm on the Laguna near Santa Rosa and was the result of a lawsuit, Ballard having foreclosed a mortgage on the former's farm.

A ruffle about two inches wide and set up around the armholes in a high "flare" will be seen in stiffened gauze and in mousseline de soie on silk dresses. Often a corresponding, but wider ruffle, will accompany the first, falling below a balloon sleeve and surrounding the arm at the elbow.

A pretty way to freshen a silk evening gown is to cover both skirt and bodice with accordion-plaited chiffon or crepon. The bodice can be finished around the neck with a lace bertha or yoke and the plaited portion below drawn in at the waist with the finish of a silver girdle or a folded satin belt with chatelaine ends of ribbon.

The ball given by the Young Mens' Institute at Union Hall on Thanksgiving eve was well attended and was a social and financial success. The floor was ably managed by Ed. Dowdall, while the music furnished by Gerardi was all that could be desired. Mine host Enke of the Union served a fine supper to which all present did ample justice. All those who attended report having had an enjoyable time.

The marriage of Henry Bates and Miss Zoe Clark was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Clark at high noon last Sunday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. If an acorn be suspended by a piece of thread within half an inch of the surface of a glass full of water and so permitted to remain without being disturbed it will in a few months burst and throw a root into the water and shoot upward its straight and tapering stem with beautiful little green leaves. A young oak tree growing in this way on the mantle shelf of a room is a very elegant and interesting object.

"The complexion of some ladies is naturally too white to agree with their own ideas of beauty and they try to improve matters by painting the cheeks and lips with red paint or rouge. It always looks artificial and unnatural. Now if you boil a little benzine gum in half a pint of proof alcohol until the mixture has the color of a topaz. Then bottle it and when you want red cheeks and a brilliant complexion bathe your face in it allowing it to dry in. The result will be a natural color which will not wash out. In boiling the benzine gum in alcohol care should be taken that the latter does not ignite. The preparation should be put up by a competent druggist in order to prevent accident.

STATUE OF THE REPUBLIC
COURT OF HONOR
WORLD'S COLUMBIAN
EXPOSITION.

The World's Columbian Exposition marked the climax of human achievement. It will live in memory of the crowning glory of modern times. No other development of the closing century can compare with it in practical benefit to mankind.

Who that exhibited is not proud of it? Who that failed to exhibit does not regret the omission? The former are the people of to-day. The latter are relics of the past.

No honor so high as that embodied in an award at the fair. Competition was world-wide, the fruits of ripest experience and noblest endeavors were submitted for examination.

Honest tribunals, composed of eminent scientists, examined and passed upon the claims of exhibitors. Their judgement based on inquiry and justice, proves conclusively the value of any article they commend.

Their approval was stamped on

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

It received the highest award at the fair from a jury headed by the Chief Chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Price's was officially commended for highest leavening power, purity, keeping qualities and general excellence.

THE official reports show that no baking powder received an award over the Royal at the Chicago World's Fair.

The judge of awards on baking powder writes that the claim by another company to have received the highest award is false; that no such award was given to it.

The Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest baking powder made, and has received the highest award at the Great International Expositions and World's Fairs wherever exhibited in competition with others.

It makes the finest, lightest, sweetest, most wholesome bread, cake and pastry. More economical than any other leavening agent.

HOW BULLETS ARE CAUGHT.

One of the Most Mystifying Conjuring Tricks Neatly Explained.

Speaking of the bullet catching trick in particular, Professor F. D. Hewes, who is also a dealer in the art mystic, said:

"There are literally but few tricks in magic. The so called new ones presented to the public from time to time by our leading magicians, conjurers or whatever they call themselves, are simply the revival of some old experiments clothed in new form. The catching of bullets is not by any means a new trick, for it is almost as old as magic itself. I remember seeing the old 'Fakir of Ava' perform the same trick, only in a different manner, when I was a small boy. The catching of the bullet is easily explained. In the first place, to accomplish it the conjurer must procure an old style caplock, smooth bore musket, some powder, caps and a leaden bullet. All these must be perfectly free from any deception. Now we come to the ramrod. Therein lies the whole mystery of the trick. It is constructed with a small metallic tube closed at one end and so arranged as to become detached from the end of the ramrod at will.

"Having explained the construction of all the appliances, we will now proceed to do the trick. The gun, bullet, powder and caps are freely given for examination. The performer requests some one to put the charge of powder into the gun. Next he inserts a small piece of paper and rams it down, and by a twist of the ramrod to the left the small metal tube is dislodged from the point and remains within the gun barrel. Now the bullet is marked and placed in the gun by one of the audience; again the professor rams it down. Now, by a contrary twist, the metal tube becomes fast to the ramrod so that in withdrawing it the bullet is removed.

"The performer now palms the marked bullet and all that remains to do is to go through the motions of catching it when the gun is discharged, and the spectators are thoroughly mystified. You see, it is all very simple when you know how."—Boston Post.

Jumping Pills.

A Germantown bachelor of convivial habits, missing his last train, spent the night with a friend in town and met with a harrowing experience. When they awoke in the morning, the Germantown man, to use his own expression, felt like a fur salesman who had swallowed his samples. He was still a trifle under the influence of the rosy, and his nerves were not in the best possible condition. On the dressing case was an open pill box containing two pellets. He was about to ask his friend what kind of pills they were when one of them gave a little squirm and turned completely over. The Germantown man rubbed his eyes and stared in amazement. Then the other pill slowly began rolling about the box, and his eyes threatened to bulge out of their sockets. The two pills next began hopping up and down, as though trying to escape from the box. Thoroughly frightened, the Germantowner gave a yell, and jumping into bed pulled the clothes over his head.

"Take 'em away!" he groaned.

"Take what away?" asked his very much surprised friend.

"Those pills in that box. Have I got 'em, or are they really jumping about?"

"Pills!" was the laughing reply. "They're not pills. They're a couple of those jumping beans I bought yesterday and put in the pill box to keep."—Philadelphia Record.

He Stocked Up on Eyes.

Of the glass eye worn by a prominent publisher of New York several amusing tales are told. The artificial orb matches its natural fellow so accurately that the two cannot be distinguished apart. One day the publisher was visited by a man considerably under the influence of liquor. The caller made an objectionable remark to which the only reply vouchsafed was a prolonged stare of indignation. The steady gaze affected the man's shattered nerves, and his self control left him entirely when he saw a fly crawl over the publisher's glass eye without causing him even to wink. "Have I got 'em again?" cried the inebriate as he fled to the nearest drug store, intent on loading up with aromatic spirits of ammonia and bromide.

While on a yachting trip the publisher suffered for a few hours from seasickness. When he recovered, he noticed that the good eye was bloodshot, while the other retained the brilliancy of apparent health. "Ah," he remarked, cheerfully, "I must stock up on eyes so as to be prepared for emergencies." And he did, and he now has on hand orbs of various shadings.—New York World.

Talking Through a Human Body.

To talk through a human body, or a row of human bodies, for the matter of that, is one of the weirdest of the electrician's feats. If a telephone wire be severed and the two ends be held by a person, one in each hand, but far apart, it is quite possible for two individuals to carry on a conversation through the body of the medium as readily and as distinctly as if the line had been properly connected.—Electricity.

Veronese's Big Painting.

Veronese loved to represent festive gatherings on a colossal scale. His "Marriage of Cana" is 30 feet long and 20 feet high and contains 130 figures. The most remarkable feature of the painting is the group of musicians in front round a table. Among this party Veronese represents Titian, Tintoretto, himself and other celebrated painters.—Exchange.

Trades unions have existed in China for 4,000 years. The Celestial workman levies toll on every transaction according to laws laid down by his trades union and without for a moment taking into consideration what his employer may consider proper.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
